Power to your team

For organisations to grow, so must their people

Recent global events have emphasised the need for organisations to innovate, to remain competitive and sustainable. Changes in the way we work, including digital transformation, cross-border teams, increased mobility and hybrid working, highlight the need to build a strong, agile, resilient workforce with the right skills to increase productivity and improve performance.

The traditional focus on developing job-specific technical skills has given way to two emerging areas of focus – digital fluency and ‘power skills’. Power skills, formerly known as soft skills, such as communication, language, collaboration and leadership, are no longer ‘nice to haves’. They are essential and can boost confidence and productivity, empowering teams to rise to these new challenges, embrace new opportunities and lay foundations for future success.

In recent studies, almost nine out of ten managers and executives report that their organisations face skills gaps now or will do in the next five years. To close these gaps, upskilling and reskilling need to be top of mind for business leaders and learning and development teams.

Our experienced teams help you to create scalable, customised programmes designed to deliver the optimum combination and level of power skills. Finding the right solution to build these skills is crucial for employee performance and vital for organisations to thrive in today’s turbulent, global, multicultural work environment.
